https://www.facebook.com/notes/andreas-buechel/i-believe-in-my-little-finger/1930533793637900/

i believe in my little finger 21.6.2018
exercising the freedom to believe in the sanctity of ones own body somehow the human being has evolved or devolved... and from here on the journey is not finished many marvellous wonderfull abilities are within all parts of the human body, most of them not yet discovered eventually by the majority of us who are lucky to be able to make use of all our body parts to make sure this journey is open and the choices in the humans path stay manifold ... importance could be given to the sanctity of the human body like it has produced itself within the womb of the mother and later on trough life this importance could be extended to matters of:

nourishment what is not causing harm, like for example fruits vegetables grains what are cultivated in the most gentle possible manner, allowing wild plants to live too beside the cultivated plants, allowing wild insects to thrive in the semi-cultivated gardens, shortening the transport lenght as much as possible so to ensure optimal freshness harmonious sound ambiance, by understanding the influence tones and noises can have to both the human psyche and soul, thoughts and feelings, a community what glorifies the sanctitiy of the human body does give attention towards the quality of sounds what members of the community produce... eventually using tools made of wood what is fallen by storm and natural decay, thisway letting go of all things metal and all kinds of motors what are producing noises the production processes in general probably are evaluated, is this work necessary, how could our lives be slower easier more comfortable if this work was not created, if this building or that road was not to be built, if we just went for more simple, more primitive, less complicated ... less complications also bring with them less interdependance if i believe in my own little finger, if i dedicate all my lifes energy to the wellbeing of this little tiny finger, i probably will try to make it only touch things what feel happy to touch, put only the purest water on it, keep it out of any possible impure air or make sure it never ever would have to be formed with the other fingers together into a fist for self-defence ... so my goal would be to keep up some relationships to other beings, human, animal, plants ... relationships what are under the umbrella of letting each other do what feels well to do and be, not listening to any rules or so called laws, what a silly concept anyway...laws... but instead truly think of how i want to be handled, how my little finger wants to be treated, so i would want to treat all of the human, animal, plant, stone ... beings with whom i would choose to be in contact so ... here now comes the fairly difficult part ... listing all the things a true believer in ones own little finger ... would not want or would not allow, mmmh... perhaps easiest to just use the me perspective here again:

i as a believer in my little finger
-i will not allow any human or otherwise being to take a photography of my body if i was not asked before if i agree being photographed, this includes all sorts of filming or areal photography
-i will not allow any human or otherwise being to force me to do any kind of action if i am not being asked before if i would want to do this or that action, these actions include for example ...greeting (its my choice whom i want to greet in what manner), talking, walking, sitting... signing anything, sharing ones fingerprints ... what leads automaticly to the whole concept of personhood... a true believer in ones own finger does not define him/her/itself by the name given by others or a birth date, neither birth certificates nor any kind of citizenship documents are of importance to a person dedicated to the wellbeing of oneself, such a person is not interested to satisfy the controlling urge of any kind of bureau or people wearing weapons who demand this or that kind of identification proof ... who are they to demand informations about ones identity, who are they to demand a person remembering the date of birth or a name given by other people ... what a load of nonsense the whole concept of identity based citizenship is here now a chance to come into the positive range of description again: me and others who believe in the wisdom of life and nature and the planet being a motherly gracious being in its own greatness, we would never ask each other to lock ourselves to a piece of paper where name, date of birth, father, mother, nationality etc. would give validity to ones presence in this or that place ... a community of believers in the unversehrtheit, the sanctitiy of ones own body, would probably try to feel and test each other with our senses, do the sounds we make fit together, are the smells we emit pleasant for each other, are the sights we give to each other enriching to our aesthetical concepts... and even if we would meet each other in the worst possible conditions, not looking good, not smelling good, yelling out of pain ... we would rather feel compassion or mitleid, our feeling sorry for each other would definitly come before asking where we were born or to what nation we have been administrated to by the maleficient forces who divided this planet into the nationhood grid boesartig, full of evil i understand the system of nationhood, loading the debts of forfathers onto their children, indebting future generations with selfish foolish acts of absolutly stupid decisions like war, nuclear fission power generation, producing cars and trains travelling over 30 kilometers an hour, building huge houses where only a few people live in, basicly ... the concept of nationhood is perpetuating the mistakes of the past by melting it all together and somehow allowing an illusion of grandness, basking oneself in the extraordinary task and achievements of what some individuals (born in the same region or being given the same kind of passport) could perfom at their greatest moments while ignoring the problems and negative heritage what come out of the people of a region not taking care properly on the sanctuity of their own bodies as well as not taking care about the wellbeing of animals, plants, stones, the water, the air of where they live i am born in the middle of europe and my skin is white .. so when i talk of nations, i do not talk about the nations native indigenous human beings have founded and feel happy with in other parts of the world, for example the americas or turtle island ... the little i understand about the european centered and dominated history of the last 2000 years is that nation states are somewhat successors of the monarchies, replacing a real big evil thing ... monarchy with feudalism ... by a little less evil concept, the nation state most of the suffering and harm what has been created between humans and from humans towards animals and plants, stones, the water etc. ... came from a few using psychic and physical violence to make others give up their independance, often by employing quite a few soldiers and employes what would get a little share of what was planed to be stolen from the decent peacefull people because most of the past attrocities within europe and between europe and the other continents have not been looked at toroughly what means the full truth how the european feudalism has suppressed a great part of european people what then led to the colonial plan to have lots of people who were so dissapointed from being terrorised by the so called nobles ... it makes my mind go bad to use that word for a bunch of murders and cheaters ... of the region they were born in .... so many people in europe were disempowered by the european feudal families that it was not very difficult for them to find volunteers who were signing up for expeditions into other continents with the promise given by the leader of the biggest religious group at that time that all the lands who were not inhabited by christians could be possessed by the so called discoverers ... ah another truly evil and foul idea, that believers of the christian idea would have the right to go to an other continent and take away lands of people who were living there for a long time allready ... https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Inter_caetera ... so ... as long as these attrocities what one could call empires and colonial actions what also include the financing of these actions ... as long as this thefts are not compensated, what means every farmer who got chased away of land what his ancestors have been used allready, every native indigenous person whose hunting and collecting lifestyle has been disturbed by settlers from europe ... as long as all the families both in europe and on all other continents do not get compensated for what they have been stolen from by feudalistic bunch, the few families causing so much harm and grief over dozens of centuries ... as long is the nation state not much a better thing than the clergy and feudal bandit group before but what has it all to do with the belief in ones own little finger, the belief in that only oneself shall be at the command for all possible decisions ... because the people enslaving empire monarchy clergy past is being continued by the nation state what demands from every human being to carry a piece of paper or a plastic card what would give the wearer the right to be in that or this place on this or that continent ... the nation state system is enslaving every newborn by demanding the child being given a name and assigning a nationality to the person... so the nation state what binds the newborn respectivly its parents to a set of rules what neither the newborn nor possibly the parents have been agreeing to or only agree partially with this thing called the law, this nation state what recruits its member not by asking them if the want to be member but just by occupying a territory and knotting together the acceptance of national law with the right to stay in this occupied territory what if a believer in ones own little finger would declare all the space surrounding ones body, like for example the space the arms occupy when stretched out vertical... would declare this space to be free of any rules and laws of any nation state, and if many of us believing into listening to ones little fingers being much better than to study any book or listening to anyone wearing a weapon or listening to anyone threatening to lock another one into a prison because of this or that reason ... what would possibly happen if many human beings would just stop to obey any police and military backed law crippeled nation system and instead would get together on the local level, the city block/quarter and the village ... to find a local consensus ... how are we going to find healing from all the empire and nation state injustices .. how are we going to live together within these one or three square kilometers, in harmony and supporting each others wellbeing, so no ones little finger gets harmed, no ones feeling get hurt and everyone feels warm, cozy, loved ... at home